Background/Analysis:

The draft Creative City Road Map will be presented at a public open house on September 17; the draft content of the Creative City Road map will be presented in an exhibit format. Following the open house, the Creative City Road Map exhibit will be hosted at various locations targeted to reach underserved communities, throughout Minneapolis, for about one week at each location. In addition, there will be public “loop back” events at most of these locations during the exhibit period. The same information presented at the open house will be presented at the “loop back” events.

The Creative City Road Map planning process will result in the Creative City Road Map, a 10 year vision for the city’s arts, culture and the creative economy. The Road Map will define a vision for the future of arts, culture and creative economy development in Minneapolis.
